Four Seasons Private Residences Los Angeles, located at 9000 W. 3rd Street, is the company's first standalone residential project in North America and joins London's Twenty Grosvenor Square as one of only two worldwide.

Construction is underway with more than half of the units already sold for the first residential project in Los Angeles from Four Seasons, the world's leading luxury hospitality company, developed in partnership with Genton Development Company, a privately held real estate investment company and developer in Southern California.

"As we continue to grow and strengthen our residential offerings globally, we are excited to introduce our first residences in Los Angeles with an exceptional standalone project, and with partners who share our dedication to offering residents the finest real estate in the world," said Paul White, president, residential, Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts. "With an existing presence through two hotels in the city, as well as an additional three properties in Southern California, this is an important market for us to expand our residential business, giving guests and locals who have come to love our brand the opportunity to make Four Seasons a more permanent part of their lifestyle."

"We are developing a world-class luxury living experience nestled in a dream location between Beverly Hills and Melrose where the best in dining, culture, art and fashion are waiting outside our doors," said Jonathan Genton, CEO of Genton Development Company. "The world's best designers and architects came together to create exclusive visionary designs for 59 private homes that come with Four Seasons services and amenities. This will soon be the most coveted private address in the city."

Four Seasons standalone residential projects are a unique offering that exist outside of a hotel or resort, and offer the finest amenities, experiences and genuine, personalised service delivered by Four Seasons staff. Four Seasons is directly involved in the design and development process of each residential project, and is the only hospitality company to fully manage the property on an ongoing basis once complete, ensuring that the highest levels of quality and service are upheld.

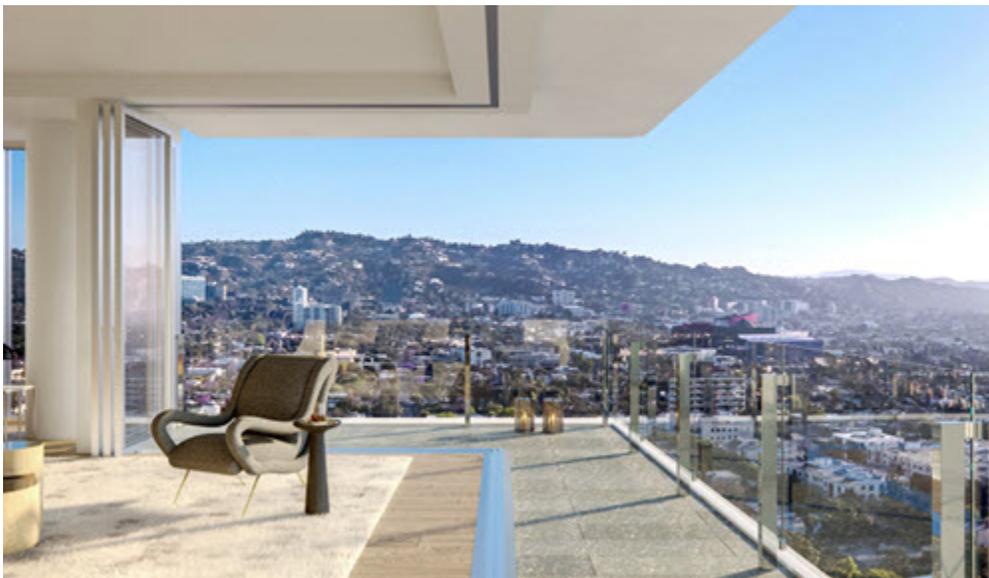

"A Four Seasons Private Residence is more than simply an address; it is a lifestyle choice – one that is marked by the exceptional experiences and genuine, personal service that only Four Seasons can deliver," continued White. "We look forward to introducing residents to a new Four Seasons experience in Los Angeles very soon."
